

The Last SPEECH and Behaviour of William late Lord Russell, upon the Scaffold in Lincoln-
In-Fields a little before his Execution, on Saturday July 21 1683. being Condemned for High-Treason in Conspiring the Death of the KING and Subversion of the Government together with the Paper delivered by him to the Sheriffs and signed with his own hand.

A Bout Nine in the Morning, the Sheriffs went to Newgate, to see if my Lord Russell was ready, and in a little time his Lordship came out, and went in to his own Coach taking his farewell of his Lady, the Lord Cavendish and several others of his Friends at Newgate; in the Coach were Dr. Tillotson and Dr. Burnet, who accompanied him to the Scaffold, built in Lincoln-In-Fields, which was covered all over with Mourning. Being come upon the Scaffold his Lordship bowed to the persons present, and turning to the Sheriff made his following Speech.

Mr. Sheriff

I Expected the Noise would be such, that I should not be very well heard. I was never fond of much Speaking, much less now; therefore I have let down in this Paper, all that I think fit to leave behind me. God knows how far I was always from Designs against the King's Person; or of altering the Government; and I still pray for the Preservation of both, and of the protestant Religion.

Mr. Sheriff, I am told, that Capt. Walcot yesterday said somethings concerning my Knowledge of the Plot: I know not whether the report is true or not,
Mr. Sheriff; I did not hear him name your Lordship.

Writer No, My Lord your Lordship was not named by any of them.

Lord Russell, I hope it is not: for to my knowledge, I never saw him, nor spake with him in my whole life; and in the words of a dying man, I Profess I know of no Plot, either against the Kings Life or the Government, but I have now done with this world, and am going to a better, I forgive all the world heartily, and I thank God, I die in Charity with all men; and I wish all Sincere Protestants may love one another, and not make way for Popery by their Animosities I pray God forgive them and continue the Protestant Religion amongst them that it may flourish so long as the Sun and Moon indures, I am now more satisfied to die than ever I have been.

Then kneeling down, his Lordship prayed to himself, after which Dr. Tillotson kneeled down and prayed with him, which being done his Lordship kneeled down and prayed a second time to himself, then pulled off his Wigg, put on his Cap, took off his Crevate and Coat, and bidding the Executioner after he had lain down a small moment, do his Office without a Sign, he gave him some Gold, then embracing D. Tillotson and Dr. Burnet he laid him down with his Neck upon the Block

The Executioner missing, at his first stroke, though with that he took away Life, at two more he severed the head from the body; The Executioner held up the head to the People as is usual in cases of Treason, &c. Which being done Mr. Sheriff ordered his Lordships friends or servants to take the body and dispose of it as they pleased being given them by his Majesties Favour and Bounty.

The Paper deliver'd to the Sheriffs

I Thank God, I find my self so composed and prepared for Death, and my thoughts so fixed on another world that I hope in God, I am now quite weaned from setting my heart on this, yet I cannot forbear spending sometime now, in setting down in writing a fuller Account of my Condition, to be left behind me, than I'll venture to say at the place of Execution, in the Noise and Clutter that is like to be there. I bless God heartily for those many blessings which he in his infinite Mercy has bestowed upon me, through the whole Course of my Life; That I was born of worthy good Parents, and had the Advantages of a Religious Education; Which I have often thank'd God very heartily for, and look'd upon as an invaluable Blessing. For even when I minded it least, it still hung about me, and gave me checks and has now for many years so Influenced and possessed me, that I feel the happy Effects of it in this my Extremity, in which I have been so wonderfully ( I thank God ) supported, that neither my Imprisonment, nor the Fear of Death, have been able to Discompose me to any Degree; But on the contrary, I have found the Assurances of the Love and Mercy of God, in and through my blessed Redeemer, in whom only I trust; And I do not question, but that I am going to partake of that Fullness of Joy which is in his presence, the hopes whereof does so wonderfully delight me, that I reckon this as the happiest time of my Life which others may look upon it as the saddest.

I have lived, and now die of the Reformed Religion, a true and sincere Protestant, and in the Communion of the Church of England, who I could never yet comply with, or rise all up to new or was I said, to show that I was still against the King's life (which I have said ever) and to show that I was still against the King's life (which I have said ever) and to show that I was still against the King's life (which I have said ever)

all the heights of some People, I wish with all my Soul, all our unhappy Differences were removed, and that all sincere Protestants would so far consider the Danger of Popery, as to lay aside their Heats, and agree against the Common Enemy; and that the Church men would be less severe and the dissenters less scrupulous, for I think Bitterness and Persecution are at all times bad, but much more now.

For Popery I look on it as an idolatrous and bloody Religion; and therefore thought myself bound in my station, to do all I could against it, and by that, I foresaw I should procure such great Enemies to my self, and so powerful ones, that I have been now for some time Expecting the worst. And blessed be God, I fall by the Ax and not by the fiery Tryal, yet, whatever Apprehensions I had of Popery and of my own severe and heavy share, I was like to have under it when it should prevail. I never had a thought of doing any thing against it basely, or inhumanly; but what could well consist with the Christian Religion, and the Law and Liberties of this Kingdom. And I thank God, I have Examined all my actions in that matter, with so great care That I can appeal to God Almighty, who knows my Heart, That I went on Sincerely, without being moved, either by passion, by End or ill design, I have always loved my Country much more than my Life and never had any design of Changing the Government, which I value, and look upon as one of the best Governments in the world, and would always have been ready to venture my Life for the preserving of it, and would have Suffered any Extremity rather than have Consented to any design to take away the Kings Life, neither ever had man the impudence to propose so base and Barberous a thing to me. And I look upon it as a very unhappy and uneasy part of my present Condition that in my indictment their should be so much as mentioned of so vile a fact, tho nothing in the least was said to prove any such matter; but the Contrary by the Lord Howard, neither does any body; I am confident believe the least of it, so that I need not, I think, say more. For the King, I do sincerely pray for him, and wish well to him, and to the Nation, that they may be happy in one another; that he may be indeed the Defender of the Faith; that the Protestant Religion and the Peace and safety of the Kingdom may be preserved, and Flourish under his Government; and that he in his person may be happy both here, and hereafter.

As for the share I had in the Prosecution of the Popish Plot, I take God to witness, that I proceeded in it in the sincerity of my heart being then really Convinced (as I am still) that there was a Conspiracy against the King, the Nation, and the Protestant Religion, and likewise profess that I never knew any thing either directly or in directly of any practice with the witnesses, which I look upon as so horrid a thing, that I could never have induced it, for I thank God, Falshood and Cruelty were never in my Nature, but always the farthest from it imaginable I did believe, and do still, that Popery is breaking in upon the Nation; and that those who advanced it, will stop at nothing to carry on their design; I am heartily sorry that so many Protestants give their helping hand to it. but I hope God will preserve the Protestant Religion and this Nation, tho I am afraid it will fall under very great Tryals and very sharp Sufferings, and indeed the impiety and profaness That abounds, and appears so Scandalously beafaced every where gives to Just reason to fear the worst things which can befall a People. I pray God prevent it and give those who have shew'd concern for the Publick good and who have appeared hearty for the true interest of the Nation, and the Protestant Religion, Grace to live so, that they may not Cast a Reproach on That which they endeavour to Advance; which (God knows) has often given me many sad thoughts and I hope such of my Friends as may think they are Touched by this, will not take what I say in ill part, but endeavour to amend their ways and live suitable to the Rules of the true Reformed Religion which is the only thing can Administer true comfort at the latter end, and Revive a man when he comes to dye.

As for my present condition, I bless God I have no repining in my heart at it. I know for my sins, I have deserved much worse at the hands of God, so that I cheerfully submit to so small a punishment as the being taken off a few years sooner, and the being made a spectacle to the World. I do freely forgive all the World, particularly those concerned in taking away my life; and I desire and conjure my friends to think of no revenge, but to submit to the holy will of God, into whose hands I resign my self intirely. But to look back a little, I cannot but give some touch about the Bill of Exclusion, and shew the reasons of my appearing in that business; which, in short, is this. That I thought the Nation was in such danger of Popery, and that the expectation of a Popish Successor (as I have said in Parliament) put the Kings life likewise in such danger, that I saw no way so effectual to secure both, as such a Bill, as to the limitations which were proposed, if they

...sincerely offered, and had passed into Law; the Duke then would have been excluded from the power of a King, and the Government quite altered, and little more than the power of a King left; so I could not see either sin or fault in the one, when all people were willing to admit of the other; but thought it better to have a King with his Prerogative, than the Nation easy and safe under him, than a King without it, which must have bred personal jealousies, and a continual struggle. All this I say only to justify my self, and not to excuse others; though I cannot but think my earnestness in that matter has had no small influence in my present sufferings. But I have now come with this World, and am going to a Kingdom that cannot be moved.

And to the conspiring to seize the Guards, which is the Crime for which I am condemned, and which was made a constructive Treason for taking away the Kings Life, to me it within the Statute of Edward the 3d. I shall give this true and clear account, I need not be at Mr. Shepheards with that company but once, and there was no undertaking then for seizing the Guards; nor none appointed to view or examine them. In Some discourse there was about the feasibility of it, and several times by accident in general discourse where I have heard it mentioned, as a thing might easily be done, but never consented to be done. And I remember, particularly at my Lord Shaftsbury's, there being some general discourse of this kind, I immediately flew out, and exclaimed against it, and asked if the thing succeeded, what must be done next, but massacring the Guards, and killing them in blood? which I look'd upon as so detestable a thing, and so like a Popish practice, that I could not but abhor it; and at the same time the Duke of Monmouth took me by the hand, and told me very kindly, my Lord, I see you and I are of a temper; Did you ever hear so horrid a thing? And I must needs do him that Justice, to declare that I never observed in him but an abhorrence to all base things. As to my going to Mr. Shepheards, I went with an intention to taste Sberry, for he had promised me to reserve for me the next very good piece he met with when I went out of Town; and if he recollects, he may remember I asked him about it, and he went and fetch'd a Botel, but when I tasted it, I said it was hot in the mouth, and I desired that when-ever he met with a choice piece, he would keep it for me, which he promised. I enlarge the more upon this, because Sir George Jefferys insinuated to the Jury, as if I had made a story about going thither, but I never said that was the only reason; and I will now truly and plainly add the rest.

I was the day before this meeting come to Town for two or three days, as I had done once or twice before, having a very near and dear Relation lying in a very languishing and desperate condition; and the Duke of Monmouth came to me, and told me he was extremely glad I was come to Town; for my Lord Shaftsbury, and some hot men would undo us all, if great care be not taken; and therefore, for Gods sake use your endeavours, with your friends, to prevent any thing of this kind. He told me there would be company at Mr. Shepheards that night, and desired me to be at home in the evening, and he would call me, which he did; and when I came into the room, I saw Mr. Ramsay by the Chimney, though he swears he came in after, and there were things said by some with much more heat than judgment, which I did sufficiently disapprove, and yet for these things I stand condemn'd; but I thank God my part was sincere, and well meant, it is, I know, inferred from hence, and was pressed to me, that I was acquainted with these heats and ill Designs and did not discover them. But this is but Misprision of Treason at most. So I dye innocent of the Crime I stand condemn'd for, and I hope no body will imagine that so mean a thought could enter into me, as to go about to save my self by accusing others. The part that some have acted lately of that kind, has not been such as to invite me to love Life at such a rate.

As for the Sentence of Death pass'd upon me, I Cannot but think it a very hard one, for nothing was sworn against me (whether true or false, I will not now examine) but some Discourses about making some Stirs. And this is not levying War against the King, which is Treason by the Statute of Edward the Third, and not the consulting and discoursing about it which was all that was witness'd against me. But by a strange fetch, the Designs of seizing the Guards, was construed a Design of Killing the King, and so I was in that cast.

And now I have truly and sincerely told what my part was in that, which cannot be more than a bare Misprision; and yet I am condemned as Guilty of a design of Killing the King, pray God lay not this to the charge, neither of the Kings Council nor Judges nor Sheriffs, nor Jury: And for the Witnesses, I pity them and wish them well, I shal not reckon up the Particulars wherein they did me wrong; I had rather their own Consciences should do that, to which, and the Mercies of God, I leave them. Only I still averr, that what I said of my not hearing Colonel Ramsay deliver his Message from my Lord Shaftsbury was true for.

all the heights of some People, I wish with all my Soul, all our unhappy Differences were removed, and that all sincere Protestants would so far consider the Danger of Popery, as to lay aside their Heats, and agree against the Common Enemy; and that the Church men would be less severe and the dissenters less scrupulous, for I think Bitterness and Persecution are at all times bad, but much more now.

For Popery I look on it as an idolatrous and bloody Religion; and therefore thought myself bound in my station, to do all I could against it, and by that, I foresaw I should procure such great Enemies to my self, and so powerfull ones, that I have been now for some time Expecting the worst. And blessed be God, I fall by the Ax and not by the fiery Tryal. yet, whatever Apprehensions I had of Popery and of my own severe and heavy share, I was like to have under it when it should prevail I never had a thought of doing any thing against it basily, or inhumanly; but what could well consist with the Christian Religion, and the Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom. And I thank God, I have Examined all my actions in that matter, with so great care That I can appeal to God Almighty, who knows my Heart, That I went on Sincerely, without being moved, either by passion, by End or ill design, I have always loved my Country much more than my Life and never had any design of Changing the Government, which I value, and look upon as one of the best Governments in the world, and would always have been ready to venture my Life for the preserving of it, and would have Suffered any Extremity rather than have Consented to any design to take away the Kings Life, neither ever had man the impudence to propose so base and Barberous a thing to me. And I look upon it as a very unhappy and uneasy part of my present Condition that in my indictment there should be so much as mentioned of so vile a fact, tho nothing in the least was said to prove any such matter; but the Contrary by the Lord Howard, neither does any body; I am confident believe the least of it, so that I need not I think, say more. For the King, I do sincerely pray for him, and wish well to him, and to the Nation, that they may be happy in one another; that he may be indeed the Defender of the Faith; that the Protestant Religion and the Peace and safety of the Kingdom may be preserved, and Flourish under his Government; and that he in his person may be happy both here, and hereafter.

As for the share I had in the Prosecution of the Popish Plot, I take God to witness, that I proceeded in it in the sincerity of my heart being then really Convinced (as I am still) that there was a Conspiracy against the King, the Nation, and the Protestant Religion, and likewise profess that I never knew any thing either directly or indirectly of any practice with the witnesses, which I look upon as so horrid a thing, that I could never have induced it, for I thank God, Falshood and Cruelty were never in my Nature, but always the farthest from it imaginable I did believe, and do still, that Popery is breaking in upon the Nation, and that those who advanced it, will stop at nothing to carry on their design; I am heartily sorry that so many Protestants give their helping hand to it. but I hope God will preserve the Protestant Religion and this Nation, tho I am afraid it will fall under very great Tryals and very sharp Sufferings; and indeed the impiety and profaneness That abounds, and appears so Scandalously bearfaced every where gives to Just reason to fear the worst things which can befall a People. I pray God prevent it and give those who have shew'd concern for the Publick good and who have appeared hearty, for the true interest of the Nation, and the Protestant Religion, Grace to live so, that they may not Cast a Reproach on That which they endeavour to Advance; which (God knows) has often given me many sad thoughts and I hope such of my Friends as may think they are Touched by this, will not take what I say in ill part, but endeavour to amend their ways and live suitable to the Rules of the true Reformed Religion which is the only thing can Administer true comfort at the latter end, and Revive a man when he comes to dye.

As for my present condition, I bless God I have no repining in my heart at it. I know for my sins, I have deserved much worse at the hands of God, so that I cheerfully submit to so small a punishment as the being taken off a few years sooner, and the being made a spectacle to the World. I do freely forgive all the World, particularly those concerned in taking away my life; and I desire and conjure my friends to think of no revenge, but to submit to the holy will of God, into whose hands I resign my self intirely.

But to look back a little, I cannot but give some touch about the Bill of Exclusion, and shew the reasons of my appearing in that business; which, in short, is this. That I thought the Nation was in such danger of Popery, and that the expectation of a Popish Successor (as I have said in Parliament) put the Kings life likewise in such danger, that I saw no way so effectual to secure both, as such a Bill, as to the limitations which were proposed, if they re sincerely offered, and had passed into Law; the Duke then would have been excluded from the power of a King, and the Government quite altered, and little more than the name of a King left; so I could not see either sin or fault in the one, when all people were willing to admit of the other; but thought it better to have a King with his Prerogative, the Nation easy and safe under him, than a King without it, which must have bred perpetual jealousies, and a continual struggle. All this I say only to justify my self, and not to blame others; though I cannot but think my earnestness in that matter has had no small influence in my present sufferings. But I have now come with this World, and am going to a Kingdom that cannot be moved.

And to the conspiring to seize the Guards, which is the Crime for which I am condemned, and which was made a constructive Treason for taking away the Kings Life, to bring it within the Statute of Edward the 3d. I shall give this true and clear account, I need not be at Mr. Shepheards with that company but once, and there was no undertaking then for securing or seizing the Guards; nor none appointed to view or examine them. Some discourse there was about the feasibility of it, and several times by accident in general discourse where I have heard it mentioned, as a thing might easily be done, but never consented to to be done. And I remember, particularly at my Lord *Shaftsbury*s, there being some general discourse of this kind, I immediately flew out, and exclaimed against it, and asked if the thing succeeded, what must be done next, but massacring the Guards, and killing them in blood? which I look'd upon as so detestable a thing, and so like a Popish practice, that I could not but abhor it; and at the same time the Duke of Monmouth took me by the hand, and told me very kindly, my Lord, I see you and I are of a temper; Did you ever hear so horrid a thing? And I must needs do him that Justice, to declare that I never observed in him but an abhorrence to all base things. As to my going to Mr. Shepheards, I went with an intention to taste Sherry, for he had promised me to reserve for me the next very good piece he met with when I went out of Town; and if he recollects, he may remember I asked him about it, and he went and fetch'd a Bottel, but when I tasted it, I said it was hot in the mouth, and I desired that when-ever he met with a choice piece, he would keep it for me, which he promised. I enlarge the more upon this, because Sir George Jeffes insinuated to the Jury, as if I had made a story about going thither, but I never said that was the only reason; and I will now truly and plainly add the rest.

I was the day before this meeting come to Town for two or three days, as I had done once or twice before, having a very near and dear Relation lying in a very languishing and desperate condition; and the Duke of Monmouth came to me, and told me he was extremely glad I was come to Town; for my Lord Shaftsbury, and some hot men would undo us all if great care be not taken; and therefore, for Gods sake use your endeavours, with your friends, to prevent any thing of this kind. He told me there would be company at Mr. Shepheards that night, and desired me to be at home in the evening, and he would call me, which he did; and when I came into the room, I saw Mr. Tamsey by the Chimney, though he swears he came in after, and there were things said by some with much more heat than judgment, which I did sufficiently disapprove, and yet for these things I stand condemn'd; but I thank God my part was sincere, and well meant, it is, I know inferred from hence, and was pressed to me, that I was acquainted with these heats and ill Designs and did not discover them. But this is but Misprision of Treason at most. So I dye innocent of the Crime I stand condemn'd for, and I hope no body will imagine that so mean a thought could enter into me, as to go about to save my self by accusing others. The part that some have acted lately of that kind, has not been such as to invite me to lose Life at such a rate.

As for the Sentence of Death pass'd upon me, I cannot but think it a very hard one for nothing was sworn against me (whether true or false, I will not now examine) but some Discourses about making some Stirs. And this is not levying War against the King, which is Treason by the Statute of Edward the Third, and not the consulting and discoursing about it which was all that was witness'd against me. But by a strange fetch, the Designs of seizing the Guards, was construed a Design of Killing the King, and so I was in that cast.

And now I have truly and sincerely told what my part was in that, which cannot be more than a bare Misprision; and yet I am condemned as Guilty of a design of Killing the King, pray God lay not this to the charge, neither of the King's Council nor Judges nor Sheriffs, nor Jury: And for the Witnesses, I pity them and wish them well, I shall not reckon up the Particulars wherein they did me wrong; I had rather their own Consciences should do that, to which, and the Mercies of God, I leave them. Only I still averr, that what I said of my not hearing Colonel Rumsey deliver his Message from my Lord Shaftsbury was true for.

I always detested Lying, tho never so much to my advantage. And I hope none will be unjust and uncharitable, as to think I would venture on it in these my last words, for which I am so soon to give an account to the great God, the Searcher of Hearts and Judge of all Things.

From the time of chusing Sheriffs, I concluded the heat in that matter would produce something of this kind; and I am not much Surprized to find it fall upon me, and I will what is done to me, may put a stop, and satiate some Peoples Revenge, and that no more innocent blood be shed; for I must, and do still look upon mine as such, since I know I was guilty of no Treason; and therefore I would not betray my innocence by flight, of which I do not (I thank God) yet repent, (tho much pressed to it) how fatal soever it may have seem'd to have proved to me; for I look upon my Death in this manner, (I thank God) with other eyes than the World does. I know I said but little at the Trial; and I suppose it looks more like innocency than Guilt. I was also advised not to confess matter of Fact plainly, since that must certainly have brought me within the Guilt of Misprision. And being thus restrained from dealing frankly and openly, I chose rather to say little, than to depart from that ingenuity, that, by the Grace of God, I had carried along with me in the former parts of my Life, and so could easier be silent, and leave the whole matter to the conscience of the Jury, than to make the last and solemnest part of my Life so different from the course of it, as the using little Tricks and evasions must have been. Nor did I ever pretend to a great readiness of speaking: I wish those gentlemen of the Law who have it, would make more Conscience in the use of it, and not run men down by strains and fetches, impose on easie and willing Juries, to the ruin of innocent Men: For to kill by forms, and subtilties of Law, is the worst sort of Murther; But I wish the Rage of hot Men, and the Partialities of Juries may be stop'd with my Blood, which I would offer up with so much the more Joy, if I thought I should be the last were to suffer in such a way; since my sentence, I have had few thoughts but preparatory for Death; Yet the Importunity of my freinds and particularly of the Best and Dearest wife in the world prevailed with me to sign Petitions, and make Addressees for my life. To which I was very averse. For (I Thank God) though in all respects I have lived one of the happiest, and Contentedst Men in the world, (for now very Near Fourteen years) yet I am so willing to leave all, that it was not without Difficulty, that I did any thing for the saving of my life that was Begging. But I was willing to let my freinds see what Power they had over me, and that I was not Obstinate, nor Stubborn, but would do any thing that an honest Man could do, for their satisfaction, which was the only Motive that sway'd or had any weight with me.

And now to sum up all: As I never had any Design against the Kings life: or the life of any Man whatsoever; so I never was in any Contrivance of altering the Government. what the Hearts, wickedness, Passions, and vanities of other men have occasioned, I ought not to be answerable for, nor could I repress them, though I now suffer for them. But the will of the Lord be done into whose Hands I commend my spirit; and trust that thou, O most Mercifull Father hast forgiven me all my Transgressions; the sins of my youth, and all the Errors of my past life; and that thou wilt not lay my secrets sins to my Charge but wilt graciously support me during that small Part of my life now before me, and assist me in my last moments, and not leave me then to be disordered by Fear, or any other temptation; but make the Light of thy Countenance to shine upon me, for thou art my sun, and my shield and as thou supportest me by thy Grace, so I hope thou wilt hereafter Crown me with Glory, and receive me into the fellowship of Angels, and Saints, in that blessed inheritance purchased for me by my most merciful Redeemer; who is, I trust, at thy right hand, preparing a place for me into whose Hands I commend my spirit.

Re-Printed at His Majesties Printing-House on Ormonde-Key; where are also Printing the 1st Speech Behaviour and Prayers of Capt. Thomas Walcot, John Rouse Gent. and William Hone Joyner; Impartially taken and Published by Authority. with Animadversion on the Lord Ruffe Speech, and to be sold by Joseph Wild, Bookseller in Castle-street 1683.